

Navigating My.Scouting.org Leader Training

Why Get Trained?

Would you start a cross country road trip without looking at a Map or using a GPS? Probably not right. You could probably start going in the general direction without looking at map or an exact plan. But you will probably miss an important turn or mile marker. You will waste a lot of gas, time and energy going without a plan. The same is true of Scouting.

You are probably a leader because your son wants to be a Cub Scout and you are the best Den leader to lead this group. You have probably guided the Pack or Den in the general direction. You have also, probably felt the generally stress of spinning your wheels and making wrong turns here and there. So, time to get trained, time to look at the road map. Once you are trained you will notice that most of the stresses of planning and leading your Pack and Den fade away because you now have the knowledge and tools to be successful.

How do I get Trained?

My.Scouting.org is the New BSA Website for all leaders. It is designed just for you. Every profile is designed to give every leader just what they need based of their registration.

Finding the training course:

Go to My.Scouting.org in the latest version of Chrome or Firefox

- ➡ Look to the far right of the home page on My.Scouting.org you will see the Youth Protection training that all adults in scouting need to take. Right under that is the button for “BSA Learning Center” Click on that.
  - ➡ Click on “Cub Scouts”
    - ➡ Click on your Leader Position. Most of you that is “Den Leader” and select the right age group.
      - ➡ It will show a three training modules. These are the three road maps, “Get out of town, Get Out of the State and Make it the Whole Trip.”
        - ➡ Move the Cursor of the training you want to take and a “” Will appear Click on it. Now click on the words “My Learning” at the top of the screen.

This will take you to the “My Learning Page”

You will see a list of learning plans (you put those learning plans there).

Click on one. This will take you to a new page that will show “Training Items”

Click the first training item. This will take you to a new page.

Click on “Launch”  on the right side of the screen. This will bring up a pop up. Click on the words “Click here to Launch the Course” and the training will start.
